A randy time will be had by all!

Or as Sharon Tate said in Once Upon a Time in... Hollywood:

"What's happening at the dirty movie place?"

Desires Within Young Girls (1977) [102 min.]

Directed by Richard Kanter (as Ramsey Carson)

Winner of 4 Adult Film Association Erotic Film Awards: Best Picture, Best Actress, Best Screenplay, and Best Production Value! After her husband's postcoital death, a widow (The Devil in Miss Jones superstar Georgina Spelvin) uncovers their finances aren't quite in order. To help ensure that her daughters have a more well-off life, she sets off to find rich husbands for them to marry.

The Opening of Misty Beethoven (1976) [85 min.]

Directed by Radley Metzger (as Henry Paris)

In his erotic retelling of Pygmalion, director Radley Metzger transplants the action to 1970's New York, Rome, and Paris, following sexologist Dr. Seymour Love (Jamie Gillis) as he sets about transforming Misty Beethoven (Constance Money) into the world's greatest lover. Featuring many of the most famous golden-age actors, plus a witty & intelligent screenplay, The Opening of Misty Beethoven is the benchmark by which all other adult films have been measured.

The Fireworks Woman (1975) [78 min.]

Directed by Wes Craven (as Abe Snake)

What happens when a brother and sister break the ultimate taboo? When a pair of siblings cross a forbidden line, brother Peter withdraws to become a priest, while sister Angela is abandoned to a series of strange and mysterious encounters. Filmmaker Wes Craven's sole foray into hardcore, made between The Last House on the Left and The Hills Have Eyes, ranks as his most controversial, brimming with dreamlike imagery and dark religious commentary.

Blonde Ambition (1981) [83 min.]

Directed by John and Lem Amero

Whisked away to the big city, Candy Kane (Dory Devon) and her ditzy sister Sugar (Suzy Mandel) will finally get their shot at Broadway success. One of the funniest and most opulent X-rated films ever produced, The Amero Brothers' love letter to the golden age of Hollywood musicals is a tour de force of burlesque humor, uproarious sight gags, and madcap set pieces, all culminating in one of the most outrageous finales in hardcore film history!
